

The Classic Chair Company
London

CLASSIC REGENCY SIDE CHAIR

The Classic Regency Side Chair

Model: CH-E

The Classic Regency Chair dining or desk chair is copied from an 1810 original in the manner of Thomas Hope, and made by B. Harmer.

Made entirely of solid rosewood, these chairs should last as long as the originals.

The gracefully curved tablet back has a recessed and ebonized Greek key motif.

The recessed detailing continues on the side and sabre legs, further embellished with ebonised paterae.

A saddle seat completes the classic look to this quintessentially Regency chair.

Historical note:

B Harmer is a largely unknown maker of the English Georgian period. Even to furniture historians, as there is very little surviving documentation about him. In fact, it is not even certain what The B. stands for. He is known to have worked for the Company Marsh and Tatham. Now, he is principally remembered

He also made the well documented dining chairs for William Shepherd (d.1815) of Russell Square, London. These were sold by Christies Auctioneers in July 2000:

The accompanying Classic Regency Elbow chair: model CH-EA

The Classic Regency Side Chair

The Classic Regency Chair dining or desk chair is copied from an 1810 original in the manner of Thomas Hope, and made by B. Harmer.

Made entirely of solid rosewood, these chairs should last as long as the originals.

The gracefully curved tablet back has a recessed and ebonized Greek key motif.

The recessed detailing continues on the side and sabre legs, further embellished with ebonised paterae.

A saddle seat completes the classic look to this quintessentially Regency chair.

Historical note:

*He also made the well documented dining chairs for William Shepherd (d.1815) of Russell Square, London.
These were sold by Christies Auctioneers in July 2000:*

